

When one has slaved their entire life to build things that are meant to inspire others, I cannot see why others see this as an offense to their God based on His objection to idolatry. When what has inspired you rubs off on others there is no alternative but to use "material" go between !!! These vandals seriously offend ME as what was intended to rub off from these beautiful works of art can only enter another willing mind !!!!